WESTMORELAND of VIETNAM

The "Howitzer" yearbook of West Point carries a phrase about the first captain and regimental commander of the 1936 class—" . . . his determination (just glance at that chin) has well suited him for the position as leader . . ."

This early judgment of William Childs Westmoreland has held true. Four-star General Westmoreland has achieved an enviable reputation as top American military man in Vietnam.

The ruggedly handsome 53-year-old general, born in Spartansburg, S.C., on March 26, 1914, attended Citadel College before his appointment to West Point. Commissioned a second lieutenant in field artillery, he was assigned to a regiment of horse-drawn 75 mm. guns at Fort Sill, Okla. Prior to World War II, he spent a stint with the artillery in Hawaii and Fort Bragg, N.C.

During the war he commanded artillery units in North Africa, the invasion of France, across Belgium and finally into Germany. His 34th Artillery Battalion was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation for combat in the Tunisian campaign.

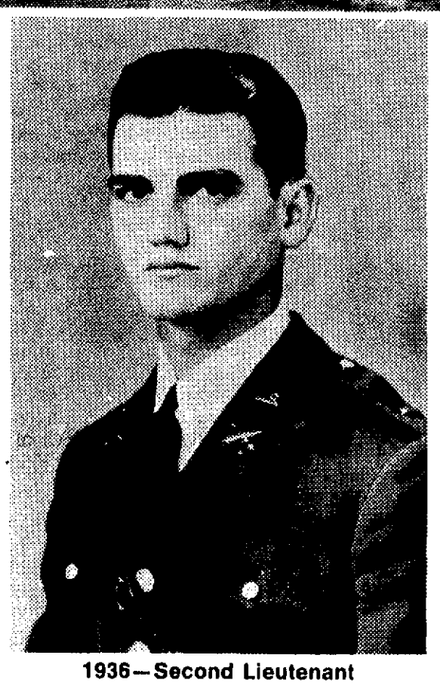

Following war's end, Westmoreland's career added wings when he earned his parachute and glider badges with the 82nd Airborne Division. He was chief of staff with this celebrated unit for three years, then became an instructor at the Army War College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Korean action as commander of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team brought Westmoreland his first star, at the age of 38, as well as the Distinguished Unit Citation from the Republic of Korea. It was also in 1953 that he was awarded the Master Parachute Badge. The next ten years the general saw duty in the Pentagon, became the youngest major general at 42 years old, headed up the famous "Screaming Eagles" 101st Airborne Division, was appointed superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy and then commanding general of the Army's XVIII Airborne Corps.

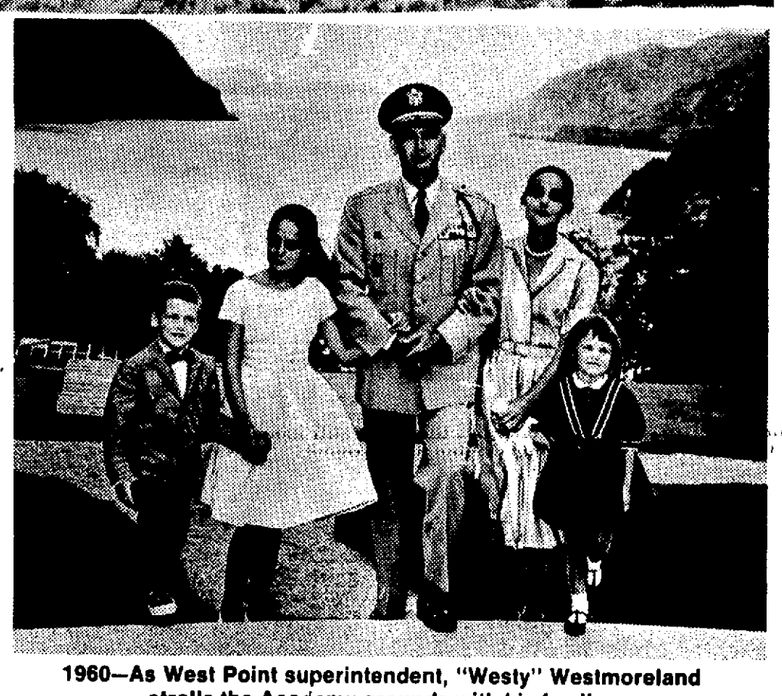

In January, 1964, Westmoreland became deputy commander of the U.S. Military Assistance Command in Vietnam. Eight months later, he took over as commander. His last three years in Vietnam, as well as those since his West Point graduation, are strong testimony to the square-jawed determination of General William Childs Westmoreland.

Alcohol Is Poison to the Liver

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Evidence that alcohol can produce direct damage to the liver, even in the presence of a well-balanced diet was reported today in two New York studies.

The question of whether liver damage results from alcohol or the poor eating habits of alcoholics has been debated in medical circles for years.

A panel of experts at the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology indicated both factors play a role. They agreed that minor liver damage in alcoholics can be cured if the subjects abstain from liquor and eat foods high in proteins and vitamins.

Dr. Emanuel Rubin, a pathologist at Mount Sinai Hospital, New York City, said evidence of fatty deposits in cells was detected in studies of slivers of liver samples under the electron micropscope.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

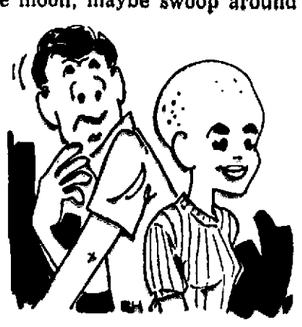

NAB SILVER DOLLARS—GET RICH: A change has swung in with coins . . . the copper-sandwich quarter replaced the silver quarter . . . and now the famed U. S. silver dollar is vanishing from cash registers. But there are still mountains of these increasingly valuable shining disks around . . . Loads scattered in the coin collections of guys and gals (almost everyone has hoarded some, given by coin-conscious relatives). Also: piled up forgotten in attics (or in misers' cellars), in coin stores, and in the hands of the big, professional coin collectors. Now, a new flood (jumping interest and the price), has been released by the U. S. Treasury from its reserves of millions, going back around a century. Bulky bags busting with 1,000 each of these, shining and untouched by grubby hands will start being traded, this month, on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Exchange experts report you can collect a premium on any silver dollar; right now coin stores will pay about $1.50 and collectors as much as $2.50 (for shining unused ones. Specimens held onto are predicted to go up a dollar a year—so in 10 years your silver dollars could be worth $10 each. The U. S. Treasury stopped stamping them out in 1935 and never expects to again . . . silver's too valuable today in electrical and other industries. How to get these big, clanking coins and grow rich from them?—That's up to you. But if you're hip to riding this silver dollar bubble, you know that many millions are loafing around . . . unnoticed by papas, mamas, aunties, uncles, grandpas, grandmas . . . and maybe even tucked away in the corner of your old desk drawer.

DULL WORK MAKES JACK A DULL BOY: Jill, too! If you dread working in a rut, look into unusual careers open to youth today. Relatively easy to break into is electric computer programing. Tens of thousands of jobs are open for teen men and women to ride herd on the miracle machines that perform a million arithmetic operations a minute. Check whether you have the skills to be a trained "coder" . . . break down slabs of data into logical smaller pieces that the busily humming machines can consume in digestible form and spew out the answers. No college degree needed if you have the knack for this kind of thinking . . . and you can play an exciting part in the coming electronic revolution in living.

Very different is the career of forester . . . guarding and nursing 758 million acres of forestland and tree crop worth $39 billion each year. Four-year college degree is now required, but you'll be in keen demand . . . with only about 20,000 foresters to patrol the whole country. You'd better like and be able to rough it in the rugged wilds . . . fighting fires, lodging your family in small towns, being away from home a lot. Girls in forestry? A few take the course—then end up marrying a forester.

Real precedent-breaking is shooting for space scientist . . . 70,000 technical guys and gals are in this year's NASA (U. S. space) programs . . . prediction is the industry around 1970 will be double the size of the auto industry. Why go into it?—You'll be part of this way-out national adventure that's going to put men on the moon, maybe swoop around Mars. Youth is wanted—to play a part as physicists, metals experts, geologists, weather specialists, engineers, electronic technicians —or even aloft as spacemen (or women!). These teens will have to have terrific curiosity . . . be disciplined and enriched by command of scientific techniques. And let's hope you won't be greeted in Russian when you land on the moon!

CROP HEM, CROP HEAD: Will shorter skirts dictate shorter hair? Renowned hairdresser Kenneth (creator of Jackie Kennedy's bouffant hairdo) has issued a sinister warning—"Short skirts need a small, close head." O.K., scoff—but remember what happened to Mia Sinatra's long locks . . . and how shorn a head is Twiggy wearing?

Engagement Announced

MISS JENNIFER COX

Announcement is made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Jennifer Cox to Mr. Curtis Van Cheney, Jr., both senior students at the University of Georgia in Athens, where, in June, Miss Cox will receive the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Speech and Drama, and Mr. Cheney will complete the requirements for a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. Donald Lamar Cox and the late Mr. Cox of Hope. Her mother makes the announcement of the betrothal. The paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cox of Hope, and the maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Jett C. Orton of Fulton and Ashdown, Arkansas. Colonel (ret.) and Mrs. Curtis Van Cheney, Sr. of Reidsville, Georgia are the parents of the groom-to-be, and his Grandparents are Mrs. Carr L. Cheney and the late Mr. Cheney of Reidsville and Mrs. Glen A. Landers and the late Mr. Landers of Lyons, Georgia.

Miss Cox was graduated from Hope High School and attended Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Virginia where she served as a member of the May Court. In the summer of 1965 she transferred to the University of Georgia to complete her studies. She is affiliated with Chi Omega Sorority and serves the Georgia chapter in the capacity of Vice President at this time.

Mr. Cheney attended Wakefield High School in Arlington, Virginia, after which he was a student at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tennessee, before pursuing his classwork at Georgia. While at Sewanee, he was a member of Wellington and Los Peones Clubs, both busily active organizations on the campus. His fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The wedding will be an event at eight o'clock in the evening on Saturday, July 22, 1967, in the sanctuary of First Methodist Church, in Hope. The couple will reside in Reidsville, Georgia until the bridegroom enters the University of Georgia School of Law for the fall term of 1967.

France to Set Off Atom Blasts

PARIS (AP) — France says it will explode three small atomic trigger charges in the South Pacific this summer to find the best way to set off the thermonuclear bomb which the French plan to test in 1968.

The Ministry of Information said the explosions will be small. It said both the danger zone and the fleet of observing ships will be much smaller than for last summer's tests of atomic bombs.

Irish Fall Fashions in Regal Hues

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Irish are on the fashion march. And now that we've learned to use just the right accent when we say Yves Saint-Laurent, Givenchy, Bohan and Crahay, there's a new glossary of designer names to be reckoned with.

And you'll need a lilt in your voice and a feeling for the ould sod to give them their full due.

The Dublin Fashion Export Group ready-to-wear collections were shown here recently. The designer list was rampant with such names as Jimmy Hourihan, Basil Collins, William and Brendon O'Reilly, David Kenna and Sheila Mullally.

It's hard to believe you'll answer a friend's compliment on your costume with, "It's a Mullally." But it's about to happen.

Hourihan has a fantastic collection of coats, suits and ensembles in richly hued Irish wools.

For the young set Basil Collins introduced a double cutaway jacket in curry wool to be teamed with his "Plus Two" miniknickers.

The O'Reilly brothers, designing as a team for Emor, showed a yellow tunic dress with navy turtleneck collar and little boy shorts.

David Kenna, little more than a teen-ager himself, presented a fine collection of pants, costumes, coats and suits with an imaginative use of bold and small multitoned checks.

Couture designer, Sheila Mullally carries Irish wool fashions to superb heights with co-ordinated drawnwork and smooth fabrics.

Irene Gilbert created an extensive collection of haute couture styles from handmade Irish lace to tweed fashions. Her cloque evening designs feature beautiful fabrics such as golden roses on a lime ground.

There are others—Gail of Dublin, Donald Davies, Henry White, Arthur J. Barling and Raymond Kenna (father of David)—who offer handsome woven fashions. And not to be outdone are the knitwear styles by Hainbach, Brian Blennerhast, Glen Abbey and Clodagh O'Kennedy. These run the gamut from evening clothes to bulky sweaters.

Color reigns supreme—lush winy reds, multitone blues, a new deep turquoise, sunny yellows, orange and every tone of beige.

The collections were beautiful and wearable. So polish up on your brogue. You'll be needin' it to place an order in the future.

IRISH DESIGNERS SHOW NEW YORK their fall collections for 1967. The Dublin Fashion Export Group ready-to-wear collections included the clutch coat by Sheila Mullally (left) in rich tones of royal, petrol green and turquoise tweed. It is worn over a turquoise dress with artist's bow at the neck. Hostess gown (center) of hand-loomed wool by Donald Davies in soft gold with red and Plus Two's (right) miniknicker version of Plus Fours by Basil Collins in curry wool with a matching double cutaway jacket and turtleneck sweater were also among the designs shown.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Following a practice begun last year with Robert Wise, the Directors Guild of America is now running a retrospective festival of the films of the latest winner of its annual award, Fred Zinnemann.

Since the Guild's award has always coincided with the Oscar for best direction, the custom works out nicely. And seldom has a victory been so popular, Zinnemann being more or less a director's director.

The selections for the festival demonstrate the versatility of the Vienna-born director.

First comes "The Search" (1948) which would have been important if only for introducing Montgomery Clift to the screen. But it was more than that — a poetic study of the displacement of war, and perhaps the first important postwar film made by Americans in Europe.

Another vital introduction in 1950 — Marlon Brando in "The Men." In 1952, "High Noon," which raised the Western to its highest art and established Gary Cooper as a film immortal. "The Member of the Wedding" 1952, a financial flop but cherished by some critics.

"From Here to Eternity" 1953, a modern classic which gave Zinnemann his first Oscar. "The Nun's Story" 1958, his sole venture into religion and a rare spiritual experience. "The Sundowners" 1960, in which Robert Mitchum proved that he can be a fine actor. "A Man for All Seasons," Zinnemann's dip into the costume picture while avoiding the deadliness of costume pictures.

Zinnemann has directed only 16 features, starting with "The Kid Glove Killer" in 1942 after he graduated from the MGM shorts department. Others included a good wartime film, "The Seventh Cross"; the overproduced "Oklahoma!"; a fine contemporary drama, "A Hatful of Rain"; and his 1963 mistake, "Behold A Pale Horse."

A wide variety of work. But all his films have a common ingredient: humanity. Very often the story concerns a man pursuing his own conscience against big odds — Pruitt in "Eternity" taking on the whole U.S. Army, Gary Cooper trying to marshal public opinion against invading outlaws, Sir Thomas More defying the marital whims of Henry VIII.

'Hardware' Fashions

If the present Paris fashion trend to industrial zippers, nailheads, riveted nameplates and wired-together plastics continues, French girls may need carpenters' kits, not needle and thread, for repair jobs. Currently, young fashions have been hammered together in the nearest hardware store.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — The question about which twin had the Tony — Tony Randall that is — was purely coincidental Thursday night in a tired little stab at British comedy called "The Wide Open Door" on ABC.

The program obviously was designed to match the mood of the famous old film comedy, "The Lavender Hill Mob" and was even written by the same man, T.E.B. Clarke. But it just never came off.

In the first place, there were just too many ingredients, all of them confusing. The result was an enormous amount of scurrying around by a large cast trying to touch all bases, but there was a marked shortage of humor.

Worst part was the confusion. First there was Honor Blackman playing twins, one dumb and one bright but both members of a mob attempting a bank robbery. Then there was Tony Randall playing a mustached Scotland Yard sleuth and also his double, a slick crook who assumed the detective's identity and a false mustache to pull off his evil deed.

Most of the time the viewer did not know which was the sleuth and which the crook and what was worse, didn't really care. Anyway the bad guys were caught in the end and it must be said the whole thing was accomplished without shooting, fisticuffs — or laugh track.

The 90-minute program was one in the "Stage 67" series.

NBC and Johnny Carson, after long negotiations, patched up their differences and the performer will return to his "Tonight Show" Monday after a three week absence.

Hospitals admitted 475,878 more persons in 1965 than in the previous year.

MORE WEDDING TANTRUMS

Dear Helen: You sure said it when you asked, "Why must adults, who should know better, go out of their way to run what should be the happiest time of a girl's life—her wedding day?"

My husband's best man and my matron of honor just happen to hate each other because they were once engaged and had a bitter break-up. They're both married to others now, and I thought bygones would be bygones, but no! Everything went fairly well until the final rehearsal. Then there was a big fight, and the mates got into it too, and everything ended in tears and confusion. My matron of honor refused to come to the after-rehearsal party, which made me sad as she's my favorite first cousin.

And the wedding was so strained I almost cried from sheer nerves—figuring those two would mix it up again. The best man's wife wouldn't let him come to the wedding dinner, if "that female" was going to be there. All in all, it was a miserable affair, and if I had to do over again, I'd get married in the minister's study with just our folks present.

Please keep telling 'em Helen, that a bride should be happy, and if adults must fight, they'd better fight some other time.—JUNE

Dear June: Consider 'em told!

With all the tears, nerves, fights and recriminations big weddings generate, frankly I'll never understand why they remain popular. They certainly aren't with me!—H.

Dear Helen: What do you think of a girl of 18 getting an apartment of her own? I'm out of school, have a good job, never lived away from home and think it's about time. How else can I learn to manage? I don't want to have wild parties—and my parents trust me here—but they seem to think their little girl just isn't old enough yet.—READY TO FLY

Dear Ready: If you're out of school, employed, and sensible, I think it's time you tried your wings. An apartment will teach you many things—mainly that living away from the family is twice as expensive as you think. Why not look for a roommate to share the rent and utility bills?—H.

Dear Helen: Tell me how to help a friend. Sue is 15, Tom is 19. Since she began going steady with him, she won't even see her old friends. All her time is spent with Tom. On Sundays her family goes off to visit relatives, leaving Sue and Tom alone in her house, all day. On week nights Tom works till 11, then comes by Sue's house and stays until midnight.

Her school work is never done, and her marks are dropping. Her mother blames the teachers. She can't see that Sue is headed for trouble. The rest of us see it. Tom may get drafted any time, and we're just hoping Sue doesn't find herself deserted and pregnant. How can we wake her up? FRIENDS

Dear Friends: You won't have much luck waking up a girl whose parents are asleep at the switch. Perhaps Uncle will solve the problem by removing Tom from the scene until Sue—and her folks—develop some sense.—H.

Grandparents Getting More Independent

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grandma and grandpa are getting more independent all the time.

There's a marked trend for older Americans to maintain their own homes, the Census Bureau reports.

Take a look at what happened in a 15-year span. The Census people say "about 9.5 million households in the United States in 1965 consisted of a household head living alone or sharing his home with persons not related to him. In two-thirds of these households, the head was 55 years old or over.

"The number of households of this type in 1965 was double the number for 1950."

The vast migration from rural areas to cities has had much to do with this trend, in the view of Don Huminel, assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"Down on the farm in the old days," he says, "Grandpa and Grandma often lived with the younger generations, and were an economic asset to them. They could help raise the grandchildren, do the cooking and chores. But there's not much room or role for the senior citizens when the younger folks live in a small apartment."

Homes for senior citizens are proliferating the nation over. And HUD has many a role in this trend — from FHA-insured mortgages for luxury cooperatives to subsidizing $30-a-month apartments for the poor.

Meet a couple of oldsters who enjoy such housing in the nation's capital:

— Mrs. John H. Knapp, great-granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall and cousin of Gen. George C. Marshall. She's a Navy widow, and at 78 she's full of vim and meets life with a merry chuckle.

— Guy Stokes, retired plasterer's helper. At 82 he's tall, straight and full of humor. His proudest boast is that in the last two years he has learned to read and write.

Mrs. Knapp's home for her mellow years is the old Roosevelt Hotel which has been rehabilitated under FHA mortgage insurance.

Here the prices, including rent, breakfast and dinner, range from $185 a month for a small room with private bath to $400 a month quarters for two people — living room, bedroom, dining area, kitchen and bath. There is weekly maid service and linen is supplied.

Many retired, semiretired, or in some cases still-working teachers, writers, artists, musicians and government workers live at the Roosevelt, and it's a sort of quiet beehive. Things going on range from a millinery class to a travel club, from checkers to shuffleboard.

Iranians reckon time from the Hegira, the flight of Mohammed to Medina in A.D. 622.

TUES.-WED SAENGER

DISCUSSION — Brian Bedford attempts to get his date, Julie Sommars, to share his strong feeling for classical music while she is a guest in his Venice, Calif., garret apartment in Ross Hunter's Universal picture, "The Pad" (And How To Use It), photographed in Technicolor.

GIFT FROM CONNECTICUT

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — The congregation of St. James's Episcopal Church, West Hartford, Conn., which sent $1,500 last year to help meet the cost of a students' chaplaincy at Aberdeen University, have repeated the gift this year. There are strong links between Aberdeen and the diocese of Connecticut.

The first Episcopal bishop, the Rt. Rev. Samuel Seabury, was consecrated in Aberdeen, and the Rev. Douglas Kennedy, rector of St. James's, West Hartford, is an honorary canon of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Aberdeen.

METHODISTS LOSE MEMBERS

LONDON (AP) — The Methodist Church in England is losing about 10,000 members a year, according to Dr. Leslie Davison, secretary of the Methodist Home Missions Department, who calls his church "the helpless victim of social revolution."

Dr. Davison says the current mobility of the population means that local churches tend to be left to the leadership of the retired and elderly and make little impact on newcomers.

He hopes the proposed reunion of the Methodist Church with the Church of England will enable both bodies to arrange their manpower and finances to better advantage.

BE PARTNERS WITH GOD SUPPORT HIS CHURCH

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish le lership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

This is a day of reckoning. This is a day of exactness. This is a day when every man must stand up and be counted. Whether you are a watchmaker or a grinder of high-powered lenses... you've got to be good. God demands our best. He is not satisfied with average products. To be out of measurement means the whole of what you are doing is useless. Precision grinding is expected of you if you are to be trusted with the operation of this highly efficient machine. Spiritual Precision is necessary if you are to walk with God.

We also are to work in the field of sensitive minds, hearts, nerves and spirits. This is the realm of spiritual and eternal values. Flesh and blood persons are to be dealt with. Am I as careful in moulding the life of a child as in creating a watch, or a lens, or a pilotless plane? There is no better place to learn of the fundamental workings of God than at the little Church on the corner. Here, you will hear the Master Workman, as he says, "Inasmuch as you did it unto one of the least of these, you did it unto me."

Ministers of all faiths and the community-minded firms below persuade you to read this Spiritual Values page and make it a part of your life . . . it is your heritage.

At Times LBJ Loses Point of His Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has a habit of throwing so many different things into one speech, like packing a shopping bag, his main points some times get lost in the public mind.

While he has made a number of separate statements and speeches on the war in Vietnam, with varying effectiveness, at no time has he been able to make the war critics back up.

It's doubtful some of them would back up, no matter what he said.

As the critics get louder, some people have come to think he should pull the pieces together and in one long, detailed, and clearly reasoned speech devoted entirely to the war explain the American role in it, and the background.

His administration has harped on the American determination to see that the people of South Vietnam remain free to choose their own government in a democratic way.

This gets hooted at since after 13 years of direct U.S. help to South Vietnam the people there haven't yet been able or allowed to choose the government they want through broad elections, although they are moving in that direction.

But one of the steady, although perhaps often unnoticed, themes in the speeches of Johnson himself is this country's philosophy behind its decision to stop Communist aggression and expansion.

The philosophy is simply stated: to prevent the Reds from taking over all Southeast Asia. This can be called a selfish American reason, and to a degree it is.

This country knows it couldn't survive in a world controlled by communism. Another part of the reasoning is that if the effort isn't made to stop Red aggression wherever it occurs, then there is nothing to stop it anywhere.

In his speech to the Tennessee Legislature March 15, Johnson made the point: "...if we were prepared to stay the course in Vietnam, we could help to lay the cornerstone for a diverse and independent Asia, full of promise and resolute in the cause of peaceful economic development for her long-suffering people."

And he added: "If we faltered, the forces of chaos would scent victory and decades of strife and aggression would stretch endlessly before us. The choice was clear. We would stay the course. And we shall stay the course."

But this reasoning seems to get blurred in the sound of critical thunderclaps—or bleatings, depending on the vein—booming across the country because of the American involvement.

That the American concern about Red aggression, and the need to stop it, is real and neither a myth nor limited to American thinking, was illustrated Tuesday at the 12th annual meeting of the foreign ministers of the eight-nation alliance, the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization created in 1954.

It was intended to be a cooperative effort by the Southeast Asians against any Communist effort to take them over. But there was bitter complaint about the Red danger and SEATO's failure to do what it was supposed to do.

Thanat Kohman, foreign minister of Thailand blamed SEATO for its "inaction and impotency" in meeting early crises after its formation and said this encouraged the Communists to their "boldest adventure in South Vietnam."

Right now, he said, Red guerrillas are trying to dominate Thailand. At the same time Jesus Vargas, SEATO's secretary general, said Red subversion and terror tactics have recently become intense in the Philippines.

These realities, which are confirmation of Johnson's reasoning, are likely to be forgotten in the day by day emotionalism over the war.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A 10-million-watt floating nuclear power plant recently began operating on a test basis off the coast of Virginia. Built by the Army, it is mounted in the hull of a modified World War II Liberty ship. About 880 tons of concrete and 600 tons of lead provide a shield around the nuclear reactor and protect the operating crew, says The World Almanac. If proved successful, the floating plant could be towed to any port in the world to supply electricity for military operations or for communities hit by disasters.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Muscle Tension May Be Cause of Jaw Pains

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Stand in front of a mirror. Place the first finger of each hand on the sides of your face, just in front of the tragus of the ear. Now open and close your mouth a few times.

Do you feel a click or snap as though your jaw was about to become dislocated? Is there a grating, sandpaper-like noise? Is there more motion on one side than the other? Is your mouth opening narrow? Does your jaw deviate to one side when you open and close?

The presence of these symptoms probably indicates some degree of malfunction of your hinge joint, called temporo-mandibular joint.

This joint is an amazing conglomeration of bone, bony protuberances, muscles, ligaments, capsules, cartilage, disks, nerves, joint fluid, blood supply, etc. It controls movements of the jaw, allowing 360-degree motion. Its muscles are capable of producing pressures of 250 pounds per square inch at teeth surfaces.

To work properly, all structures that comprise the TM joint must complement each other, working in perfect harmony, not only with each other but with the chewing apparatus, the teeth.

The TM joint is a tough "work horse" and can stand all sorts of pressures, from chewing tough steaks to biting hangnails. Yet there can be slight, unnoticed eccentric pressures from poor bite that can produce the common symptoms mentioned above.

Most dentists feel that poor bite is the major cause of TM disturbances. Some say that muscle tension and muscle spasms are important causes. Both are interpendent to such a degree that malfunctions of muscles can cause malfunction of chewing apparatus, and vice versa.

Other causes, although less common, are worth noting: trauma, infection, rheumatoid or degenerative arthritis, tumor and gout.

Jaw dysfunction is often accompanied by pain and discomfort and neurological disturbances, such as burning sensations on side of tongue and palate, ringing in ears, headaches and, sometimes, metallic taste.

Usually symptoms can be relieved by application of hot, wet packs to side of face, over the joint. Pain can be controlled with aspirin.

For more permanent relief, proper diagnosis and treatment are most important. Muscle tension and disharmony must be lessened and bite adjusted. Also, knowledge of the limitations of your particular chewing apparatus can help control your discomfort.

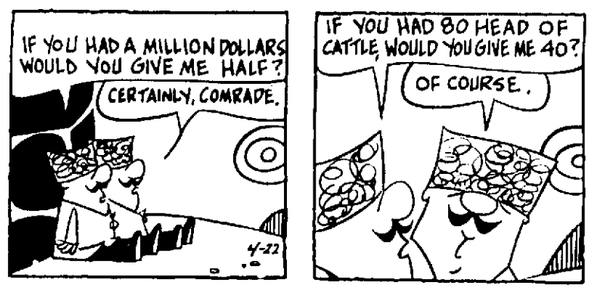

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Victor Mollo discusses sacrifice bidding in "Success at Bridge." He starts by giving a horrible example of a man taking a 1,300-point set only to find out later that his adversaries would not have made their game.

Then he is kind enough to give a hand played by Jim Jacoby and Bob Nail against France in the 1963 World's Championships.

Theron of France, sitting West, opened one heart and after Nail passed Desrousseaux, East, jumped to two spades.

Mollo's comment: "Sitting South was Jim Jacoby with one of those unbalanced hands that seem to run in the family. At the worst Jim could go down five tricks for a 900-point loss at four diamonds but he wanted to make it hard for his opponents to bid their good hands to best advantage. In addition, if he were to go down five at four diamonds then East and West surely had a slam."

Jim's four diamond bid did not stop the French from bidding to the laydown six hearts but it did give Bobby Nail a chance to go into action. Bobby defended at seven diamonds and the best the French could do was to double him, and collect 1,300 points by perfect defense.

Theron opened the queen of hearts. Desrousseaux overtook and returned the ten of clubs. Theron cashed his ace and king and gave his partner a ruff. East proceeded to play ace and another spade, whereupon Theron led his last club and East trumped with his king.

Back to Mollo: "Nail's sacrifice was perfect judgment. He was looking at one trick—the ace of diamonds. He knew that Jim could contribute nothing to the defense and you need two tricks to beat a slam."

Says Football Merger Will Never Work

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Merger of the National Football League and the American Football League will never go through as originally planned, predicts former AFL Commissioner Joe Foss.

Foss, who headed the AFL from its inception in 1959 until his resignation seven years later, gave his views in an interview Tuesday. He was in Minneapolis for meetings of an insurance firm with which he now is associated.

The former commissioner and onetime South Dakota governor recalled the merger agreement made last summer included a joint draft and championship game.

"My understanding is that one negative vote from any member of the two leagues can stop the final agreement from being ratified before the 1970 season," Foss told Sid Hartman of The Minneapolis Tribune.

"The way I have it figured," he added, "the AFL would have to pay the NFL $27.5 million if the merger were to come off as planned. The NFL also will be paid for the 10th franchise in the AFL.

"I can't believe that members of the AFL will ever agree to pay this money. There are numerous tax problems to overcome. I know that Sonny Werblin, owner of the New York Jets, is utterly opposed to paying anything. He may sell his franchise regardless."

Progress in Latin Areas Questionable

WASHINGTON (AP) — It sounded like a call to a new life, to a fresh beginning, and the very manner of the man gave that feeling.

In the White House the Latin-American diplomats stood listening as the young president proposed that their republics join the United States in a 10-year, 10-point program.

Its goal, he said, would be "to build a hemisphere where all men can hope for the same high standard of living — and all can live out their lives in dignity and freedom."

He suggested that the various American nations could transform the continent and make it "an example to all the world that liberty and progress walk hand in hand."

That was in March 1961, and President John F. Kennedy stirred the Latin Americans as they hadn't been in years. From that moment he became a shining figure to this country's southern neighbors.

Even the disastrous American-backed rebel invasion of Cuba just a month later didn't spoil the Kennedy image in Latin America, for later in the year the Alliance for Progress was created at Punta del Este in Uruguay.

Now it's almost six years later. Has there been progress under the alliance? Those who are delighted at any sign of forward movement in Latin America will say yes. Others, more pragmatic, think the alliance has just been stumbling along.

Last week another president, a different kind of man, with a different manner, Lyndon B. Johnson, went to another meeting at Punta del Este, this time for a meeting with 19 Latin-American presidents to get more action for the future and in more ways.

He operated in low key, standing in the background pretty much, avoiding any flamboyance or suggestion of dominating the conference because he represented the Western Hemisphere's dominant force, the United States.

At the opening session he yielded his own speaking time to the others and did what was more natural for him since he had been doing that kind of thing most of his life: he talked privately with the individual presidents.

His ability as a speaker had never equaled his ability as a negotiator.

And when he did speak to the assembled group he left out the big flourishes, avoided flat promises of help, said instead he would do his best to get Congress to agree to aid the Latin Americans in various ways.

Atlanta is at Baltimore, Chicago at Pittsburgh, Washington at Philadelphia, New York at St. Louis and San Francisco at Minnesota in other openers.

The four divisions of four teams each will be the Capitol and Century divisions in the Eastern Conference and the Coastal and Central in the Western Conference.

Each team will play the other teams in its division twice, the teams in the conference's other division once and the teams in one of the other conference's divisions once. This year, Capitol teams will play Coastal teams in interconference play, and Century teams will meet Century teams.

The Capitol Division has Dallas, New Orleans, Philadelphia and Washington; the Century has Cleveland, New York, Pittsburgh and St. Louis; the Coastal has Atlanta, Baltimore, Los Angeles and San Francisco, and the Central has Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay and Minnesota.

After the 14-game regular season ends, the Western Conference title game will be held Saturday, Dec. 23, at the home of the Central Division champion, and the Eastern playoff will take place Dec. 24 at the home of the Capitol Division champion.

The winners of those games will play for the league title Sunday, Dec. 31., with the Western Conference champion as the home team.

The Rocket Is Following His Brother

MONTREAL (AP) — Little Henri Richard, the Pocket Rocket, is following in the footsteps of his retired brother Maurice, The Rocket, in scoring goals for the Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League playoffs for the coveted Stanley Cup.

The Pocket Rocket, a 5-foot-7 demon on skates, slapped home three goals to lead the Canadiens in a 6-2 rout of the Toronto Maple Leafs before 14,779 Thursday night in the opener of the best-of-7 final Cup series.

Henri now has scored 28 goals in 93 NHL playoff games. This compares to the 82 Maurice tallied in 133 playoff games before his retirement in 1960 as the No. 1 playoff scorer.

Henri's first goal broke a 1-1 tie in the first period. He scored the last two in the third period to widen a 4-2 Montreal lead as the Canadiens chalked up their 11th straight victory and stretched their unbeaten streak to 16 in a row.

"We didn't skate much and they beat us to the puck all night," said Punch Imlach, the Toronto coach. He ordered a stiff workout today in an effort to sharpen the Leafs' play for the second game of the series here Saturday afternoon.

"There's still a long way to go," cautioned Toe Blake, coach of the favored Canadiens. "Let's remember this is just one game."

Pick Orioles-Braves on Pitching-Hitting

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

The Baltimore Orioles and Atlanta Braves, both loaded with power hitters and deep pitching staffs, are picked to win the 1967 American and National League pennants, respectively.

Hanks Bauer's Orioles, who limited the Los Angeles Dodgers to a pair of harmless runs in sweeping the World Series, have improved without making a deal.

The Birds put more depth in their pitching by retaining rookies Ed Barnowski and Tom Phoebus, both up from Rochester, N. Y. Barney, 23, won 17 International League games last year, and Phoebus, 25, who won 13, pitched shutouts in two of his three Oriole starts last September.

Bauer's other regular starters are Wally Bunker, Dave McNally, Jim Palmer and Steve Barber, if he can shake a tender left forearm.

As for hitting, Baltimore has player of the year Frank Robinson, who survived a right knee cartilage operation; third baseman Brooks Robinson; first baseman Boog Powell and, if they need him, Mike Epstein, the husky minor league player of the year. The Robinsons and Powell had 106 homers among their 331 runs batted in.

Braves Ape Counterparts

It would be ironic if the Braves face the Orioles in the World Series. The Braves are managed by ex-Army major Billy Hitchcock, the pipe-smoking man the Birds dropped after the 1963 season in favor of Bauer, one of his coaches.

After Billy took over for Bobby Bragan last Aug. 9, the Braves skipped off with 33 of their 51 games, a .647 pace. He righted the unsteady ship when he brought Pat Jarvis up from Richmond, Va., and made him a starting pitcher. The 26-year-old Carlyle, Ill., native won six straight.

Other Brave starters are Tony Cloninger, Ken Johnson, Denny Lamaster and Dick Kelley. Behind them are Don Schwall, Bob Bruce and Wade Blasingame, and for relief it's Clay Carroll, Jay Ritchie, Phil Niekro and rookie Ramon Hernandez who is 27 and appeared checked by the California Angeles. He was their batting practice pitcher.

Atlanta, 10 games back in fifth place in 1966, also figures to be more acclimated to its new ballpark as the Braves begin Georgia's second year in the majors. Former Yankee Clete Boyer figures to tighten the infield with his unmatched reflexes at third base.

Pirates Are Favored

The Pittsburgh Pirates are favored with good reason. They looked like winners last year until they dropped four of their last six. The Dodgers won the last day of the season while the Bucs limped home third, a game and a half back of the runner-up San Francisco Giants.

The Pirates increased their pitching to where the staff on hand in Florida showed 104 major league victories for a combined effort in '66. They added Dennis Ribant of the Mets and Juan Pizarro of the White Sox. Plus, they got speedy Maury Wills from the Dodgers to play third base.

Catching is the one spot where Manager Harry Walker's team is suspect, and few experts expect five of the club's regulars to bat between .299 and .342 again.

Big bats are Bob Clemente, Willie Stargell and Donn Clendenon. This trio had 90 homers among 319 runs batted in last year. The Bucs also have in second baseman Bill Mazeroski and Gene Alley at short the best double play pair in baseball. Pittsburgh is the team to beat, especially if Woody Fryman, Vern Law and Bob Veale pitch well.

But the Braves appear to be the coming team because their attack is devastating. Hank Aaron, Joe Torre, Felipe Alou and Rico Carty combined for 126 homers and 378 runs batted in. Add 23 homers and 66 RBIs for Mack Jones, the team's only left handed hitter, and you have real depth at the plate.

American League Rundown

In the American League the Boston Red Sox, under freshman pilot Dick Williams, and the California Angels have improved their attack. The Sox have added first baseman Tony Horton and center fielder Reggie Smith, both 22, from Williams' Toronto International League champions. Horton had 26 homers, hit .297. Smith led the league with .320. He's got it all and hits with power from both sides of the plate.

Bill Rigney's Angels have picked up first baseman Don Mincher and center fielder Jimmie Hall from Minnesota and have in Rick Reichardt, 24, a potential star.

But the Red Sox and Angels will be wanting for pitching, a big item even in the big parks. The Minnesota Twins improved their hurling but sacrificed run making. They have added ex-Angel Dean Chance and former Senator Ron Kline, a relief star.

Jim Kaat, a 25-game winner, heads the mound corps which shows 94 major league victories for 1966. Tony Oliva and Harmon Killebrew will need big years if the Twins are to dethrone the Orioles.

Tigers Have Pitching, Too

Detroit, under new pilot Mayo Smith who left the Yankees as their super scout because they were at a low point in talent, is loaded with hurlers, led by 20-game winner Denny McLain, the bespectacled organist. They also have Earl Wilson, 18-game winner last year, Mickey Lolich and Johnny Podres who believes he ought to start regularly.

For bats the Tigers feature Al Kaline, Norm Cash and Willie Horton.

Eddie Stanky's Chicago White Sox will be rough if his pitching of Tommy John, Gary Peters, Bruce Howard and Joe Horlen holds up. Stanky has added Jim O'Toole of Cincinnati and reliefer Don Dennis of St. Louis. Tommy Agee looks like his one big hitter with rookie catcher Duane Josephson, 24, ticketed for stardom.

Cleveland, under freshman pilot Joe Adcock, who would have been happy just to start out as a coach, features a hurling staff of Sam McDowell, Steve Hargan, Gary Bell, Tom Kelley, Sonny Siebert and Luis Tiant. He'll be rough if his relief pitching comes around. Rocky Colavito must hit better than .238 to get the Tribe in contention. And the .245 of Max Alvis isn't true.

If Kansas City only had some hitters it would be fighting for the pennant. They'll settle for fifth. The Athletics have the best young staff in the game in Lew Krausse, Catfish Hunter, Blue Moon Odom, Jim Nash and Chuck Dobson. They range between 20 and 25 and have cost Charley Finley more than $300,000. Manager Al Dark figures Phil Roof, his underrated catcher, will help the young staff. Ex-Brave Roof is 26 and Atlanta wishes it had him back following mid-March finger injuries to Joe Torre and Gene Oliver.

New Yankee Infield

The New York Yankees, now fully owned by CBS (could be stronger), have face-lifted more than 43-year-old Yankee Stadium. They have a brand new (slightly used at the corners) infield.

With first base his new position, Mickey Mantle hopes to play "another two or three years." Ex-Met, Cardinal and Dodger Charlie Smith, 29, will be at third base. Light hitting glove man Ruben Amaro and Dick Howser will share short with Horace Clark on second. They will miss retired Bobby Richardson at that spot.

If Whitey Ford makes a comeback Yankee pitching could be a big improvement. Better years also are expected from Mel Stottlemyre, Al Downing and Jim Bouton. Others with promise are Fritz Peterson, 25, Stan Bahnsen, 22, and reliefer Dooley Womack, 27.

But in hitting, Mantle will need a good year at the bat to get the Yankees closer to the first division. Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh seem to hit in hard luck every year and Ellie Howard may share the catching with Jake Gibbs. Bill Robinson, right fielder who hit .312 at Richmond, is a potential rookie star.

Gil Hodges added to his pitching in Washington, getting Camilo Pascual from the Twins and relievers Darold Knowles from the Phils and Bob Priddy from the Giants. Too much depends on the hitting success of popular Frank Howard, the jolly 6-foot-7 giant and his new batting stance. Ex-Twin Bernie Allen has been added for second base.

Giants Can Be Tough

San Francisco's Giants, led by the 25-game winning Juan Marichal and the bats of Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Jim Hart, will go as far as their pitching will take them. Ten staffmen show 98 victories for 1966, including ex-Giant Mike McCormick, obtained from Washington. They can use better southpaw pitching and Mac might help spur Ray Sadecki to better efforts.

The St. Louis Cardinals could be on the rise, led by 21-game winner Bob Gibson and ex-Yankee Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda. But they are thin in pitching.

Philadelphia will miss the big bat of Bill White who has Achilles tenden problems since turning the wrong way playing paddle tennis just before Christmas. With him hobbled, third baseman Rich Allen, a man who could hit 50 homers this year, may see a lot of bad pitches. Twenty-game winner Chris Short and veteran Jim Bunning, with 19 wins three straight years, will have to be great to keep the Phils in the race.

Koufax Will Be Missed

Cincinnati, with Dave Bristol starting out as manager, needs more than 81 RBIs each from Deron Johnson and Leo Cardenas to make a run for the flag. Eleven hurlers show a total of only 73 wins for '66. This is bound to improve under Coach Mel Harder.

The loss of Sandy Koufax, who retired with an arthritic elbow, will put more pressure on the Los Angeles Dodger pitching. The incomparable Koo won 27 games last year. No Dodger drove in as many as 75 runs last year although the attack could improve with Ron Hunt and Bob Bailey.

Ex-Met Hunt gives the Dodgers a fine second baseman and a possible new team leader to replace banjo-playing Maury Wills who left school in Japan and was traded to Pittsburgh.

For him the Dodgers got Bailey and a fine fielding but light hitting shortstop in Gene Michael.

The Houston Astros, Chicago Cubs and New York Mets will have their usual fight to stay out of the cellar.

The Cubs have the two best RBI men from among these three teams. They are Ron Santo and Billy Williams but Leo Durocher still has to show improvement in his pitching. Maybe Joe Becker, regarded as one of the games top coaches, will remedy the situation.

Both the Mets and Astros lack solid pitching and hitting. The Mets are woefully weak around second and short. Their mound staff shows only 46 victories, and that includes ex-Pirate Don Cardwell.

Most teams have rookie standouts and the likely stars in the American League are catcher Josephson of the White Sox, Epstein of the Orioles, Smith of the Red Sox, and Robinson of the Yankees. Met center fielder Don Bosch, 24, could be a cinch to win National League rookie honors.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

The Backswing

By FRANK BEARD
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is an old saying among golfers that goes, "Give me a player with a fast backswing and a fat wallet." This tells what is thought of a fast backswing and, more important, the poor results.

The point is nothing good ever comes of something that is rushed in a golf swing. Keep in mind that the slower you take the club away from the ball the better your chances are for good results.

There are many theories concerning which part of the body moves first on the backswing. I think all parts should move at the same time if the swing is to be a unit. Separate movements would mean all cohesive and unified action is lost.

Look at the hands. The thing to remember about the hands is that they go straight away from the ball as far as possible, then forget them as they are connected elsewhere and will react naturally. Next come the shoulders, they move only one way—in a vertically circular motion around the chin. Just hit the chin with the left shoulder and then forget it.

The arms are kept in an extended position at all times. Not rigid, just extended. The last thing to do is to shift the weight to the right with the hips rotating circularly, not laterally.

All movements take place simultaneously. Each part is connected to the other in some manner. Don't worry about one individually, just as a group working together.

DURING the backswing, the shoulders move in a vertically circular motion around the chin.

Employee Not Always A Worker

Some office managers and supervisors may think the figures are too high, but a University of Michigan graduate school of business publication estimates that out of every 100 office workers in the United States, only 60 to 80 are actually working at any given time. The Michigan Business Review quotes a management consultant as saying the efficiency of the average office force is seldom higher than 80 per cent and may be as low as 60 per cent.

Less than 5 per cent of today's total clerical force in the United States is measured against accurate standards of a "fair day's work," the consultant estimates. On the other hand, he says more than 80 per cent of the so-called blue collar workers are working under some form of modern work measurement system.

He figures that by 1970 there will be an estimated 37 million white collar workers compared with 30 million blue collar workers in this country. Which reminds us of the old story wherein a visitor asked the boss, "How many people are working for this company?" And the boss replied, "Oh, about 65 per cent." - Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger

The Big Squeeze

Government pays all sorts of lip service to the "small farmer" and "small businessman," but increasing costs, rising taxes and stricter regulations, most of them imposed by government, are putting both in bad condition. The farmer's plight has been well publicized, and is getting an extra dose of public exposure in the form of violent dairy strike.

Less well known is the depressing effect of today's economy on small business. Few people realize it, but for 14 straight months there has been a steady decline in the rate of new jobs formed by the nation's independent business proprietors. The small businessmen say the reasons are higher payroll taxes, new higher minimum wage laws and tight money.

One of these days the nation may wake up and discover that the samll businessman as well as the small farmer has "had it" as a major factor in American economic life. Are we approaching the day when there will be nothing but big industry, big business, big farm corporations, big labor and big government? - Greenville (S.C.) News

Romney Gets a Taste of a Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan's Gov. George Romney got an early taste of what it's like to be a presidential candidate, in case he becomes one in 1968. It seemed to irritate him.

Last summer he made mishmash of an answer to a question about the Vietnamese war. After that he discussed it intermittently and reluctantly. Then he decided not to discuss it at all until he was better informed.

When he felt he was sufficiently informed — this was about nine months after the mish-mash — he made a major speech on April 7, backing President Johnson's major positions on handling the war now.

He was against U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam; he was against all-out escalation of the war; and he said he was "one Republican" who would not settle on Hanoi's terms. This delighted Johnson.

For one thing, it was an endorsement from the man who may be the Republican presidential candidate next year. And because of this speech, if Romney is the man, he has narrowed down beforehand his field for criticizing Johnson.

Romney wasn't all praise but his criticism was not about the way the war is being fought.

He said Johnson had bypassed Congress in the decision-making that got this country into the war. He said he didn't think Johnson had been frank enough about the war. And he said this country must in the future avoid similar involvements.

Tornadoes Leave 47 Persons Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three vicious tornadoes cut a destructive path through heavily populated sections of northern Illinois and western Michigan Friday, killing 47 persons, injuring more than 1,500 and leaving giant, scattered wastelands behind.

The tornadoes killed 24 persons in Oak Lawn, a suburb of Chicago; 20 in Belvidere, Ill., a town of 13,000 about 65 miles northwest of Chicago; 1 in Chicago; 1 in Stone Park, another Chicago suburb, and 1 in Hillsdale County, Mich.

The Chicago Weather Bureau said the tornadoes "appear to be the worst since March 28, 1920. And when the final report is in, it may be the most devasting tornado on record in northeastern Illinois."

Hardest hit as the tornadoes twisted through scores of Illinois communities was Oak Lawn. Among the victims there were a number of young skaters at a roller rink which was demolished.

A big supermarket in Oak Lawn, which had been jammed with Friday evening shoppers, was reduced to rubble. Authorities feared casualties there could raise the death toll.

Nine victims at Belvidere were students. The twister hit as students boarded school buses at Belvidere High School. Some victims, however, were elementary school students who had been picked up earlier by the buses.

Buses were sent sailing through the air like leaves. Others were bounced across the ground and flattened.

One bus was carried more than a mile from the school.

Sheriff Joseph I. Woods of Cook County ordered police to guard against looting in debris-strewn Oak Lawn.

"All looters...will be shot on sight," he said.

"I think it's a good ruling," said Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president. "Anyone who would loot at a time like this ..." His voice trailed off as he walked into a temporary morgue in a Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

Stowaway Aboard U.S. Nuclear Ship

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 20-year-old blonde who says she was trying to get to her boy friend in California spent a night aboard the U.S. Navy's only nuclear-powered guided-missile cruiser in Sydney this week before a guard shouted: "There's a girl under the admiral's bed!"

Marine guards aboard the cruiser Long Beach found Sandra Hilder of Long Jetty, Australia, about three hours before the ship sailed for the Phillipes Thursday.

"I think they thought I must have been a spy," said Sandra.

She was in the cabin reserved for the admiral. He wasn't aboard.

The Long Beach spent five days anchored in Sydney's harbor and visitors were allowed aboard Wednesday. Sandra was among them.

"I thought I could get to America that way — I just wanted to see Bud," she explained.

Bud is Bud Brewer, 23, a Californian who was serving on the icebreaker Glacier when it visited Sydney last month.

"I met a Marine and went down to the crew's lounge," Sandra reported. "All visitors went ashore at 4:30 p.m. but those who had friends among the crew could stay until 8:30 p.m. before going ashore in a longboat.

"I stayed in the crew's lounge for most of the evening — I read and watched TV.

"Later on I knew I would have to hide so a Marine took me up to the bridge. He showed me the admiral's cabin and said I could probably hide in there without any trouble.

"I was pretty tired so I went to sleep on the admiral's double bed. I slept on top of the covers so I didn't mess it up for him."

Lindsey Won't Retire Now

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Col. Herman E. Lindsey, State Police director, said Thursday that at one time he had plans to retire but "they have now been scratched."

Lindsey made the remark after the State Police Commission gave Lindsey a vote of confidence which the commission hoped would discourage rumors "indicating that there was a strong likelihood that a change would be made in the leadership of the department."

The commission went on record in support of Lindsey after receiving a letter from Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller who said he was satisified with the way Lindsey was running the department.

Rebellious Priest Finds Some Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cardinal and an archbishop on Catholic University's board of trustees are backing a young priest-professor whose ouster generated a mass student-faculty strike that has closed the institution.

The Rev. Charles E. Curran, 33, who says he apparently was fired for his liberal views on moral theology and birth control, has received the backing of Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore and the Most Rev. Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta. The 600-member university faculty and 6,600-member student body almost all stayed away from classrooms Thursday.

The faculty passed a resolution pledging to stay on strike until Father Curran's contract is renewed. Many students carried signs supporting Father Curran and marched in vigil lines. Others simply milled about the campus in Northwest Washington.

Cardinal Shehan, in Rome attending a plenary session of the secretariat for Christian unity, issued a statement through his Baltimore office saying Father Curran should be "restored to his former status."

Cardinal Shehan said, "The entire matter should be referred to the full board of trustees for consideration."

In Atlanta, Archbishop Hallinan agreed Father Curran should be reinstated.

"I think he is a very competent man and, more important, his academic peers recommended him for a permanent teaching position," said Archbishop Hallinan. "In view of that, it was unwise for the trustees to act in a situation in which faculty members were not heard."

The Most Rev. Thomas A. Connolly, bishop of the Seattle, Wash., diocese and also a trustee, said he did not know all the facts in the case but added: "I could suggest that it be referred to the entire board of trustees. I don't believe that anyone should be dismissed without a hearing."

Cardinal Shehan was the first of the five U.S. cardinals to take a stand on an issue that centers on the priest but also has far-reaching overtones of the academic freedom issue.

All five cardinals are members of the board along with the 22 other U.S. archbishops, 6 bishops and 11 laymen.

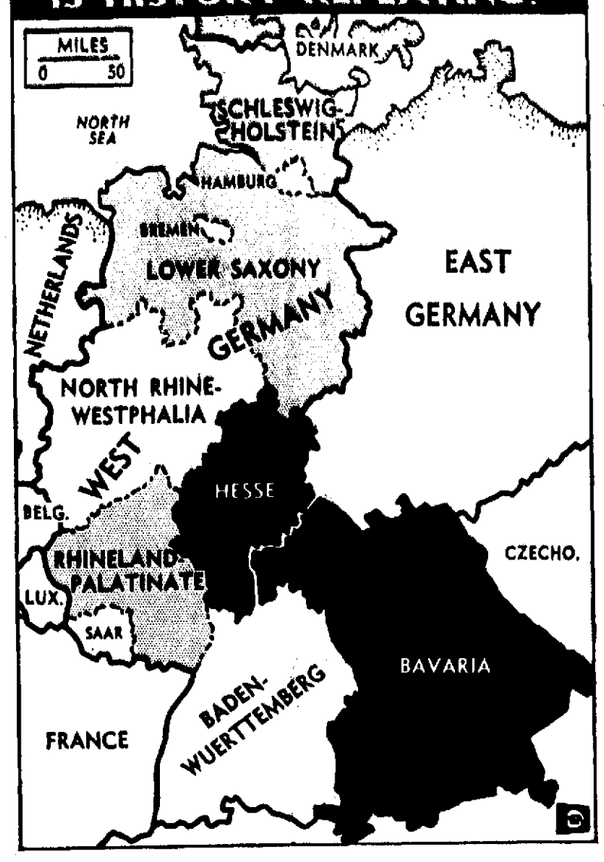

Father Curran says he was notified Monday by the university rector, the Most Rev. William J. McDonald, that the board of trustees had refused to renew his contract when it expires Aug. 31.

It was never publicly announced that the full board acted in the case but Father Curran told a news conference Wednesday the rector had informed him the board took the action in Chicago recently.

The Washington Post, quoting "an authoritative source," said only Archbishop Hallinan among about 24 trustees at the Chicago meeting opposed Father Curran's firing. The newspaper said Cardinal Shehan voiced no protest then.

The Post said the Most Rev. John J. Krol, archbishop of Philadelphia, earlier sparked a probe of Father Curran and spoke of the priest's "heretical teachings." A special committee set up to investigate Father Curran recommended his dismissal, the newspaper said.

IS HISTORY REPEATING?

Bonn and concerned Allied capitals are paying close attention to elections in three West German states where fresh gains have been forecast for the extreme right-wing National Democratic Party (NPD). The NPD, made up in large part of former Nazis, startled Germans in two elections last November. It won 15 seats in the Bavarian and 8 in the Hessian parliaments. Further gains in Schleswig-Holstein and Rhineland-Palatinate (both April 23) and Lower Saxony (June 4) would strengthen fears in Germany and abroad of a Nazi resurgence.

Remarks the Average American Housewife Gets Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that every American housewife gets tired of hearing:

"What would you like for our wedding anniversary, Jane? Something useful like a new can opener?"

"You may think money grows on trees, but it doesn't."

"Hey, Mom, where's my blue sport shirt? It has to be somewheres."

"Why is it always my turn to have to take out the garbage?"

"Yeah, it tastes okay. But, of course, nobody can cook that dish quite like my mother could."

"I was cleaning out my desk and came across some of your old love letters, Jane. Gosh, we certainly were nutty in those days, weren't we?"

"What do you do with yourself all day, just sit around and watch soap operas on television?"

"I know I promised to take you out some night this week. But can't we make it some night next week instead?"

"Hey, Mom, have you see my plaid skirt? It has to be somewheres."

"My great grandmother traveld west in a covered wagon without an electric dishwasher. My grandmother raised 10 children on a farm without an electric dishwasher. My mother never asked my father for an electric dishwasher. So why should you mind getting a few soapsuds on your hands?"

"The trouble with you, Mom, is that you're too old-fashioned."

"What do we need a new rug for? We've only had this one 23 years, and it still looks as good as new — except for the worn spots."

"While you're up, honey, would you mind going to the refrigerator and get me a can of beer? And while you're at it, how about making me a sandwich? Be sure and butter both pieces of the bread. Yeah, and don't forget the mustard."

"Hey, Mom, where's my pink blouse? It has to be somewheres."

"Gee, I wonder what it would be like to be single again. I've been married so long I don't even remember."

"I just met up with an old war buddy, so I guess I'll miss the 5:57 train. If I miss the 6:43, be sure and meet the 7:39. And if I'm not on that, I'll be on the 8:52 — for sure."

"Don't tell me we're having odessa mismash hash for dinner, Jane. That's exactly what I had for lunch."

"Hey, Mom...!"

"Hey, Mom...!"

"Hey, Mom...!"

School Ruling Touches Off a Minitempest

POMPTON LAKES, N.J. (AP) — When the school board in this New Jersey community proposed last week to tighten rules against long-haired boys and short-skirted girls it touched off a minitempest.

"School is a place of business, and students are expected to dress and groom themselves appropriately," began the ruling, due to take effect May 7 after a second reading.

From there the code goes on to specifically prohibit sweatshirts, shorts, work dungarees, tight pants and long hair for boys, and curlers, bizarre hair styles, slacks and tight or short skirts for girls. "No miniskirts," it said.

"We're not trying to change a fashion trend," said Lester V. Jochem, principal of Pompton Lakes High School, sporting a paisley tie. "We're only interested in working out the extremes. We all know women and girls are wearing shorter dresses now."

Jochem said he believed that only about a dozen students out of 1,176 are affected directly.

One of that dozen was Louise Woolf, 17, a senior, wearing a man's button-down shirt, tie, a long sweater and a short skirt.

"I don't think any adult should tell kids how to dress," said Louise. "Pompton Lakes is very provincial."

"It's not fair to take away our rights," asserted Bill Avery, a long haired guitar player in a rock 'n' roll group called "The Splinters." He wore a dotted blue shirt, tight white denims and suede boots.

"If it's a choice of cutting my hair or not being able to attend school, I think I'll see the Civil Liberties Union," said Bill, who is 17 and a sophomore.

Terry Avokian, a 17-year-old senior, said "I don't want long hair, but if somebody else does, let them."

The minitempest spread across town.

In the school hallways and on the campus there was talk of pickets and parades.

But "that's mostly what it is — talk," said Frank Campagna, 18, a senior and secretary of the student council.

Ratio of 97 to 1 for Women in Military, Fairly Good Odds Girls

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Do you remember when it was incorrect grammar to use "soldier boy" in a sentence because all soldiers were male? Such has not been the case for about 25 years now. It was during World War II that military wardrobes began to include dresses as well as the traditional "dress uniforms."

"Petticoat soldiers" (and those in the navy, marines, and air force) came into being because of wartime emergency, but in time they have become accepted as a permanent, rather than a temporary, part of our military contingency. Since military life demands great flexibility, the girls who graduate from boot camp have several qualities in common: team spirit, adaptability, and self-assurance.

Mrs. Ernest E. Bode, who lives on the Patmos Road, served with the Women Marines from May 1943 to March 1945. Her boot camp training lasted 4 weeks, and then she received training at a radio school at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. She was stationed at Mohave, Calif., for the rest of her service. There, she met and married her husband, also a Marine.

Mrs. Bode readily admits that patriotism and wartime urgency prompted her to join the Marines, but it was an important step in her life. She wanted to dispel any gosspip we may have heard about the low moral calibre of women in military service. Standards, of necessity, are high, and there is a ridgidly enforced 11:30 p.m. curfew.

A military tradition in the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Poole prompted their daughters, Gerry and Sonia, to join the army. Their brother, Harold, was in the army 23 years, and the next generation of Poole boys is now serving.

After Gerry Poole finished high school at Blevins, she was a WAC for 3 years. Her sister, Sonia, was graduated from Hope High and served 2 years as a WAC. Part of Sonia's service was spent in Europe. Later, she and her Air Force husband were stationed in the Philippines. They now live in Denver, Colo.

The minimum enlistment period (both for officers and enlisted women) is two years in the WAC; three in the WAVES and Women Marines; and four in the WAF. Any girl or woman has the option to reenlist for an extra period if she wishes. Women volunteer in sufficient numbers each year to insure a full "manpower" quotient.

Women in the military represent about one per cent of the total U.S. military force. That makes the present male to female ratio approximately 97 to one. Pretty good odds, wouldn't you say, girls?

Batesville Walkout Ends

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Robert King, general manager of the Batesville Manufacturing Co., and Thomas Landers, grand lodge representative of the Machinists Union, said Thursday that the walkout at the plant had ended.

King said employes were returning to work late Thursday afternoon and all employes were ordered to return to work by this morning.

More than 200 persons walked off their jobs Wednesday in apparent protest of the suspension of Haskell Poff, president of the machinists local, for the rest of the week for carelessness with equipment.

The Batesville firm makes unspecified defense products.

WR Wanted Probe of Milk Industry

LITTLE ROCK (AP)— Marion Burton, an aide to Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, told members of the Arkansas Dairy Commission Thursday that Rockefeller said a "monopolistic trend" in the milk industry and had wanted this investigated.

Burton said the governor had wanted a full investigation of the industry in Arkansas, and said Rockefeller disliked price fixing as well.

Burton said that for these reasons Rockefeller let the bill creating the commission go into law without his signature. Burton said Rockefeller was not enthusiastic about the creation of the commission, but said he didn't veto the measure because this was the only vehicle which could shed light on some of the industry's practices.

The commission will become effective July 1 and will have the power to set wholesale and retail prices on milk.

The commission through cost studies and public hearings can do much to stabilize, as much as possible, the price of milk to consumers, said Albert Yarnell of Searcy, who was elected vice chairman of the commission.

Burton told the commission members that the biggest problem facing them would be getting the confidence of the public. He said that this should be a primary goal.

Lloyd Lindsey of Camden was elected temporary chairman of the commission Thursday. The other members are John Banks of Malvern, Walter Jarvis of Lakeview and Benjamin Anthony of Marianna.

Newsmen Say Nixon Will Beat Romney

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sample survey indicates newspaper editors predominantly believe Richard M. Nixon will override a strong challenge from Michigan Gov. George Romney and other potential candidates to win the Republican nomination for president in 1968.

Fifty-one of 103 editors interviewed at random during the 1967 convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here said they thought Nixon will get the top spot on the GOP ticket next year. The editors were asked who they personally thought would be nominated, not who they preferred.

Romney was endorsed by 33 editors, many of whom cited his early start in the campaign. Two others — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois won top dark-horse ratings with nine votes each. Newly elected California Gov. Ronald Reagan got one endorsement.

The editors also were asked who they thought would head the Democrat ticket next year. They found the answer easy: All 103 named President Johnson, with Hubert H. Humphrey getting strong support to again serve as vice president.

Not all the editors who named Nixon to head next year's GOP ticket were sure it's a good thing. "He'll come back but he'll get the hell beat out of him if he does," said Robert C. Herrick, editor of the Muskegon, Mich., Chronicle. "Romney is running too fast and too soon," he added.

New Spanish Laws Now Effective

MADRID (AP) — Spain's seven new constitutional laws took effect today with their publication in the official gazette. They included one specifying how a king or regent could replace 72-year-old Gen. Francisco Franco as head of state in case of his death or disability.

Another of the laws guarantees personal and civil rights, makes Roman Catholicism the state religion but guarantees religious liberty for other faiths.

The others deal with enlargement of Parliament (the Cortes) referendums, government organization and a labor policy in which Spain guarantees all citizens "country, bread and justice."

In signing the decree to publish the laws, Franco gave no indication the moment is near when he plans to propose his successor, which he may do under the new measures.

Marines Keep Up Pressure, Kill 47 Cong

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines tangled with a dogged Communist force for the second day today in a rugged coastal area in the northern part of South Vietnam. The Leathernecks reported killing 46 enemy with the help of air strikes and artillery.

The action in a familiar battleground near Tam Ky, about 375 miles northeast of Saigon, was the only major ground fighting reported today.

In the air, U.S. pilots darted through partly cloudy skies Friday to carry out 118 missions over North Vietnam concentrating their bombs mostly on railways, trucks and barges.

Other planes battered enemy troop concentrations, base camps and infiltration routes inside South Vietnam. B52 bombers hit enemy fortifications and supply areas twice today in Chau Doc Province near the Cambodian border about 120 miles southwest of Saigon.

There were many isolated clashes and incidents across the country, but fighting was mostly scattered with no major engagements.

With Communist pressure steadily increasing in the northern 1st Corps area, the U.S. command announced that a new Army task force called Oregon had been set up there.

It was described as a multi-brigade force of elements of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade and the 25th Infantry Division. It is headquartered at the former Marine enclave of Chu Lai, about 52 miles south of Da Nang and is under the command of Maj. Gen. William B. Rosson, former chief of staff at Saigon headquarters.

At the same time it was announced that units of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division had closed out Operation Lejeune, their first in the 1st Corps region. The air cavalry reported killing 155 enemy and detaining 756 suspects during the 16-day operation.

The cavalry troopers pulled out of the area after being relieved by elements of the 25th Division.

Establishment of Task Force Oregon placed further emphasis on the threat to the five northern provinces of South Vietnam where the U.S. Marines have been stretched thin to meet a mounting Communist threat.

Miss Stalin Seeks Freedom in America

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — An Odyssey across three continents has brought Svetlana Stalin, daughter of the late Soviet dictator, to the United States seeking a new life with freedom of self-expression.

"I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart," she said on her arrival Friday. "I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching.

"But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

"I have come here in order to seek the self-expression that has been denied me for so long in Russia," the red-haired 42-year-old widow explained.

She said she had struggled against the break because it meant leaving her two children in Moscow and not seeing them again for a long time, "but all was in vain, I felt it was impossible to go back."

So, on the evening of March 6 she went to the American Embassy in New Delhi requesting asylum in this country and began the Odyssey that took her from India to Italy, then Switzerland and finally the United States.

Miss Stalin declined to say whether she had been granted permanent asylum here. In Washington the State Department said, "She is free to remain here as long as she wishes and is free to leave whenever she wishes."
